

4, 2012, plaintiff filed a grievance against defendant RES for the benefit of a union employee, Terrell Crockett, alleging that RES “sent Mr. Crockett home and brought in an employee represented by another local union to do the work Mr. Crockett was doing contrary to an agreement on the project to work composite crews.” [Doc. #1, ¶ 15]. The complaint alleges that the Labor Management Committee awarded Mr. Crockett three days of wages, in the amount of $872.64, and fringe benefits, in the amount of $508.29, which defendants have failed to pay.

Pursuant to Fed. R. Civ. P. 55, default judgment is appropriate when “a party against whom a judgment for affirmative relief is sought has failed to plead or otherwise defend as provided by these rules and that fact is made to appear by affidavit or otherwise.” By virtue of the default entered against it, defendant is deemed to have admitted all well-pleaded factual allegations in the complaint. See Taylor v. Ballwin, 859 F.2d 1330, 1333 (8th Cir. 1988). Thus, for the purposes of this action, it is established that defendants breached the collective bargaining agreement by failing to pay the award issued by the Labor Management Committee.

However, plaintiff has not sufficiently established that defendants owe the alleged amounts of $872.64 and $508.29. Allegations relating to the amount of damages must be proven by the plaintiff. Everyday Learning Corp. v. Larson, 242 F.3d 815, 818 (8th Cir. 2001); see also Fed.R.Civ.P. 8(b)(6) (emphasis added) (“An allegation—other than one relating to the amount of damages—is admitted if a responsive pleading is required and the allegation is not denied.”). A plaintiff can satisfy this requirement by submitting an affidavit of damages in support of the motion for default judgment. See e.g. CSX Transportation, Inc. v. Jeffco Leasing Company, Inc., Case No. 4:13-CV-849 (E.D. Mo. Sept. 6, 2013); Faith Satellite Radio, LLC v.

Lutheran Church Missouri Synod, Case No. 4:11-CV-73 (E.D. Mo. Feb. 12, 2013). The plaintiff here did not file an affidavit of damages. Furthermore, the award issued by the Labor Management Committee, which is attached to the complaint, does not state any specific dollar amounts. The award generally states that Mr. Crockett is entitled to three days of wages plus fringe benefits. [Doc. #1-1]. Thus, the Court is unable to enter a judgment of default in favor of plaintiff.

Accordingly,

IT IS HEREBY ORDERED that plaintiff's motion for default judgment [Doc. #10] is denied.

IT IS FURTHER ORDERED that plaintiff shall have until November 12, 2013 to submit an amended motion for default judgment. If no amended motion is filed by this deadline, this action will be dismissed without further notice to plaintiff.
